C. F. H. Freese, Clerk.

CHEMICAL COMPANY—8 MEN.

William P. Adams, Foreman.

Edward E. Bachelder, Assistant Foreman.

Philip B. Adams, Clerk.

The firewards desire to make the following recommendations: That there be a hydrant put in opposite the soldiers' monument, and one near Tuttle's building on Main street, and one near the engine house on Elm street. That the town should purchase an Eastman Deluge Set. This system is being used in nearly all fire departments at the present time, and we think this town should have one.

REPORT OF LIBRARY TRUSTEES.

A review of the work of the library for the past year shows no lessening of public interest in the institution and, therefore, it has been a year of most successful work. It is also shown that the institution is of marked educational influence in the community.

At no time, since the establishment of the library in its present quarters, has the circulation of books been larger than now. While the circulation is very largely along the lines of fiction, which fact is true of all public libraries, it is gratifying to note that more attention has been given by patrons to works of non-fiction. During the past year there has been a notable increase of use of books of the library by teachers and pupils of the public schools, who use them for reference purposes. Histories, biographies and nature books have been in good demand. It is the earnest desire of the official management to render all possible service in this direction and it is a subject of congratulation that such service is so much sought. While it is not always possible to supply the demands of such service it can be readily met by drawing from the books of the State Library at Concord. The number of books obtained, the past year, from that institution was largely in excess of any previous year. It should be more generally understood that the local library will accommodate patrons who desire to borrow books from the state. All that is necessary is to leave a request with the librarian for the loan of the books wanted and such request will be immediately forwarded to the State Library if the borrower is willing to pay charges of transportation.

It has been a most successful year in the acquisition of books. Never before, in the history of the institution, has the accession of new books been so large in any one year as during the past twelve months, the total number added being nearly 400. Of this number 127 were purchased by the trustees from funds provided by the town appropriation. The others were donated by friends of the library. Mr. Josiah Carpenter, the donor of the library building, manifested his abiding interest in the institution by contributing 200 volumes of a wide and valuable range of reading. Thirty volumes were donated by the Pittsfield Library Association, eight volumes by Josiah Gove of Lebanon and some thirty volumes by F. H. Benedict. Among other contributors were Hon. C. R. Corning of Concord, E. A. Sproule of Boston, J. Dana Hill, Miss Abbie Nutter of Boston, William Yeaton of Concord, Eliphalet F. Philbrick of Boston and Lewis Cutler.

In the purchase of books the trustees have been handicapped by the small amount of funds at their disposal for this purpose. Therefore, if some book which they have been requested to purchase is not found in the list added the past year, the reason why it has not been secured is apparent. We have been obliged to pass many recent publications of high merit and which are much desired. This is especially true in the line of reference works. It is hoped that some of our citizens will come to the aid of the library and furnish funds to be expended for some peculiar line of literature. To do so would be a good and enduring monument to their name.

REPORT OF SCHOOL BOARD.

TO THE HONORABLE BOARD OF SELECTMEN.

Agreeably to the provisions of the statutes requiring the school officials of the town to make to your honorable body an annual report of the conditions and progress of the public schools therein, the officials of the Pittsfield school district herewith respectfully submit their report for the year ending Feb. 15, 1904 :

To this report is annexed that of the superintendent of schools in which the progress and operation of the schools of town, for the past year, are set forth in a clear and comprehensive manner. So much so, indeed, that further discussion of such matters by the board seems unnecessary. It should be said, however, that the board fully endorse the report and call attention to the suggestions contained therein, and commend such to the careful consideration of all parents and friends of the educational interests of the town.

In submitting this report it is desired by the board to congratulate the people of the district upon the excellent condition, and the good progress of the schools for the past year, and the favorable prospects for their continued prosperity. That the management of our public schools is one of the most important duties that can be assigned to any portion of our citizens will not be disputed. To keep the standard of excellence up to that previously attained, and to make such progress and development as the times and modern ideas and methods require, demands careful and thoughtful consideration of all educational interests and sagacity, wisdom and patience in conducting school affairs. The duties devolving upon the board during the past year have been discharged with the aim and purpose to make the schools of town reach the highest standard of excellence and efficiency possible. It is not claimed that methods of instruction and school management are ideal, yet there has been definite progress and upbuilding of methods and system in many directions. It has been the constant endeavor of the board to conduct the affairs of the district in a manner that safeguard all its interests financially and educationally. It is hoped that such efforts have been rewarded with a satisfactory degree of success.

REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS.
TO THE BOARD OF INSTRUCTION.

Ladies and Gentlemen:—I have the honor of herewith submitting the third annual report from this office upon the work and condition of the public schools of Pittsfield.

The life of any school system, in any town, depends upon a few musts for its vitality, for its power to secure utilitarian results and to dispense those influences which shall reach far out into every child's life and assist in developing, consciously or unconsciously, the broad minded useful man or woman—the upright citizen. In as much as these conditions are present, so will each individual derive that measure of helpfulness for which the ideal American public school stands. Some of them are as follows: Attendance must be regular. Each pupil must make earnest, diligent use of his time. Teachers must be normal trained or experienced. Teachers must feel that their positions are ones of stern responsibility, and must enter the work with the enthusiasm born of love for the work. Schools must be well supplied with apparatus. School rooms must be comfortable and pleasant. All school work must be carefully planned and carried out. Parents must co-operate with the school. The school board must be magnanimous.

While I can say that all these conditions have been met, probably, in a degree commensurate with existing circumstances, still I would suggest that certain things be done that the efficiency of the schools may increase. Repairs in and about school buildings should be continued. The greatest need in this line is work on the blackboards.

Parents should know more of the requirements of the school so that, understanding the workings of the system, they may the better co-operate with the teachers and be less likely to misjudge a teacher's motives and the aims of the school system. No parent can afford to take sides with a child until he has investigated thoroughly the case in hand. Teachers are trying to bring the very best there is in a boy or girl to the front. Methods differ in different persons for bringing this about. Neither should any parent taboo a line of work as worthless until he understands the purpose for which it is assigned and the results that are to be obtained. For the time being we are well supplied with the absolute necessities, but the grammar grades need new sets of maps and more reference books, while the work of the High school calls for an encyclopedia and more convenient quarters and better equipment for the study of the sciences.

The first care in any school system should be the grades. Without thorough work here the higher instruction must fall short. Then, too, a large proportion proceed no further. With this in mind the work of the grades has been carefully planned and carried out. An effort has been made to cause the older pupils to feel that school life is not a joke, nor a supplement to other things; that the school room is a place of business and that all time must be profitably employed. The result is greater thoroughness. A comparison of written and oral work of this term with that of previous years testifies to this. All pupils show greater power than heretofore.

We have been hindered in our growth this year by the closing of the French school. Seventy or so pupils returned to us last September in such condition as to make it almost impossible to place them with any grade without injustice to some one. The effect has not been as disastrous as I at first feared, and I can promise you that by the end of this school year all will have adjusted themselves to some class without serious loss. The tremendous efforts of the teachers of the lower grades, coupled with the help of the third High school assistant, has made such a promise possible. The employment of this extra teacher is proving a great boon both to the grades and the High. The teachers have to work as hard as heretofore, but the work is more thoroughly done in all departments.

This is especially true of the English courses. The pupils are pursuing the study of technical English, English composition, and English literature according to the modern idea and requirements. This could not be so without this extra assistance for the work of teaching English is very exacting.

Any criticism that is made of the courses as given should be made of myself for the entire work has been carried out according to my plan which has for its basis modern requirements, modified and simplified, so far as possible, in the High school courses, to meet the needs of pupils whose grammar training is deficient.

The work of pupils in the rural schools has not been, in all cases, what I would have it. We need the co-operation of every parent in these schools if the results desired are to be obtained. While the persons you have employed in the rural schools have been inexperienced I have found them eager and quick to learn and their work has been good.

Educationally speaking it would be far better to close all the the small schools and transport the children to the village school or some central one. This is a matter that does not lie within the province of educators in any place but it is being done in several states, and the report of the U. S. Commissioner of Education shows that it is proving satisfactory and is being extended.

It is a pleasure to me to report to you that the High School has been placed, by the new authorities, in the list of schools admitting to college by certificate. It will be necessary for us to prove our right to this privilege by sending students to college who shall fulfill the requirements of such institutions.

The question is frequently asked: "Cannot the courses be made more practical?" I see no way of so doing unless the town is able and ready to employ a corps of teachers to give courses in manual training and domestic science or else a business course. The book-keeping course is all we can hope to make it without a complete equipment for a business course. And even then it would not be an up-to-date system. Neither can agricultural courses be given without similar changes. If these things are what the citizens desire it is their privilege and right to establish them, but until such conditions are met as to make this possible, there is no means of adding to, or subtracting from, the present course to vary it greatly. The most practical change that has been made is in the English courses.

The work of any High school is exacting. It cannot be accomplished without much hard work and sacrifice on the part of students. Until pupils are willing to devote some time to study outside of the regular school periods they cannot hope to accomplish it with credit. The work will be too difficult and parents, pupils and teachers will feel the lack of this work in the class room, at examination time and at home. Until this is done some pupils will be deficient in standing.

There may be a few who are not strong, physically, who cannot meet the whole requirement with credit. These should do less, even at the expense of graduation, for, after all, that is merely a form which comes each year, and does not signify the value that the school training has been to the pupils. Some boys and girls had better far take such work as they are fitted for doing and not graduate than to attempt the whole and disturb their own peace of mind, or attempt to lower the requirements of graduation in order that they may get through.

All cannot be scholars. The world would stagnate were it so. Hence it is no disgrace to find it impossible to do creditable work in some lines. The average age of graduation of pupils from the best grammar schools is fourteen and a half years. Add four years to this and the average age of graduation from High schools is eighteen and a half years. The present graduating class will average scarcely eighteen years at the time of graduation. Considering that our school system is not as complete as desired this ought to be above instead of below the average.

The South Pittsfield school was saddened by the death of Edith M. Peaslee early in the autumn. She was a girl of great promise and the loss has been keenly felt by all who knew her.

Ideal parents, ideal pupils and ideal teachers make ideal schools. Such is a possibility but not a reality. However, I can commend the work of the teachers and pupils of Pittsfield. It has been, as one of your former teachers writes, much more eagerly and enthusiastically performed than in larger places, so that what we lack in equipment we make up in enthusiasm.

FRANK HOWE BENEDICT, SUPERINTENDENT.

We have examined the accounts of the school district treasurer for the year ending February 15, 1904, and find all expenditures supported by proper vouchers.

Tree Wardens' Report.

Your tree wardens, appointed last year, having attended to their duties, submit the following brief report:

A change in the laws at the last session of the legislature making it necessary to place a disk or label, in addition to the spike, and the difficulty of obtaining the same, until nearly the close of the season, prevented the spiking of as many trees as the year before. A number of trees have been planted. Several rock maples were set out on Bridge street, at no expense to the town. Some of these have died and will be replaced by others this spring. A number of old trees have been removed and many more will have to be cut down, among them the large elm in front of the Grammar school building. This tree is so badly decayed as to be a menace to the public safety. The citizens in general are becoming more and more interested in the preservation of our shade and ornamental trees. Much more might be accomplished if the town would appropriate the sum allowed by the law, but your tree wardens have endeavored to put the town to as little expense as possible. Consequently much remains undone that we hope will be accomplished in the near future.
